The Populists Propose to Organize a Uni formed Rank of the Farmers' Alliance 50,000 Strong. They Threaten to Ignore an Adverse Decision by the Supreme Court on the Organization Question TORKKA, Feb. 24.-The Republican House was in session again to-day for the introduction and second reading of bills, but no measures are being enacted, as in the absence of a coordinate branch of the Legislature the passage of bills would be useless. The Populists are pushing the work in their House with unexampled vigor, three sessions being held each day. Fifty bills have been passed within the last thirty-six hours, most of them local

Among the general bills passed was one making it uniawful for any person to take more than eight per cent. Interest, and providing that the interest and commission of a loan agent shall not exceed ten per cent. Other measures adopted included the following bills:

Compelling railroad and other assessors to assess railroad and other property at its true value in money.

Making silver a legal tender for debts, and declaring it unlawful to contract otherwise.

Providing for the weekly payment of wages.

Authorizing any resident taxpayer to enjoin the fance of bonds about to be illegally issued.

Reducing the fees of county officers, and compelling them to torn over all fees to the county.

Regulating weights of grain and establishing grades thereof.

Prohibiting railroad companies and other corporations from employing or using armed detective forces in quelling disturbances.

The bill for an appropriation for a Kausas exhibit at the World's Fair was defeated by five votes on the strength of statements made by the members that the farmers were not able to go to Chicago, and were unwilling to be taxed for the benefit of others. One member said it made no difference how much of an exhibit Kansas made at the Fair: it would not exhibit Kanass made at the Fair; it would not grow one more bushed of corn or wheat for him or his constituents. Another said the mortgage debt of the State was greater than the assessed valuation and he was therefore opposed to voting away the people's money to make fine shows at Chicago or any other place. Still another thought the State had been sufficiently advertised within the past two weeks, and that there was no necessity for further booming of its products.

other thought the State had been sumiciently advertised within the past two weeks, and that there was no necessity for further booming of its products.

The Populists' Elections Committee has dismissed the contested case brought by O. Gleason against E. W. Claycomb, who is a member of the Republican House, and was elected by 25 votes. The committee found no proof that fraudulent votes had been cast. The Senate considered forty-eight local bills in Committee of the 'Phole last night, and recommended them for passage. To-day's session of the Senate was devoted to the consideration of the Election bill, which was passed, and the Schoolbook bill, which was passed, and the Schoolbook bill, which was passed, and the Plection bill, which was recommended for passage. It is not probable that any action will be taken by either the Republicans or Populists toward strengthening the present prohibitory liquor law or providing for its resubnission to a vote of the people.

It cannot be definitely determined what general legislation will be undertaken until the Supreme Court, has been heard from on the constitutionality of the House organization. A decision on this point is expected to-morrew. The court consists of two Republicans and one Populist. The Republicans are claiming that on all the minor questions that arose during the trial of the test case this week the Populist Judge coincided with the two Republican Populist Judge coincided with the two Republicans expression of the court. Should the majority of the court declare in favor of the Republican organization and the other Justice dissentit is feared that the Populists will not he inclined to obey the decision. The Populist and the majority of the Populist organization are in favor of ignoring an adverse decision. The Populist of the passage by the Senate of the following respultation:

This resolution was passed by n vote of 20 to 10, only one Populist being recorded in the negative.

The movement for the reorganization of the State militia is still in progress at the request of the Governor and under the direction of Adjt.-Gen. Artz. There are at present in the State service twenty-nine companies of infantry and one battery of light artillery of two sections. The military feature is to be incorporated into the present organization known as the Farmers' Alliance, which will be designated as the Military Legion or Uniformed Bank of the Alliance, on the same basis as the industrial legion was formed as the political adjunct of the Alliance in this State. The Governor claims authority to muster out all the militia companies formed under Republican administrations of the Brigadier-Generals now holding commissions. There are 100 other commissions of the Brigadier-Generals now holding commissions. There are 100 other commissions of the Brigadier-Generals now holding commissions. The present organization will not be confined to the regular National Guard of Kansas, which is limited to about 1.800 men, but will create a military force of 50,000 through the assistance of the Farmers' Alliance. Gen. Artz makes this statement:

Men are drilling all over Kansas to-day, not with guas because they have not received arms, but they This resolution was passed by a vote of 20 to 10, only one Populist being recorded in the liance. Gen. Artz makes this statement:

Men are drilling all over Kansas to-day, not with guns, because they have not received arm, but they are being drilled in forming and marching, and they will be drilled into guns when they are ready for them.
The law does not prevent the organization of an unlimited number of military companies who lean arm themselves independently of the State, and that is being done to-day. The people are in sarsest. What is the use of having a military force if it won't obey orders? With very few exceptions the officers and men of the Kansas National Guard are Republicans,
The Administration proposes that when this organization is completed it will be in such shape that when the Governor issues an order he will know that it will be obeyed.

The activity of the Governor and Adjustant.

tion is completed it will be in such shape that when the Governor issues an order he will know that it will be obeyed.

The activity of the Governor and Adjutant-General in this matter has aroused the Riepublicans, and in anticipation of future trouble they will also proceed to organize in some manner, probably by continuing the discharged militia companies as independent organizations and forming additional companies. The commanding officer of the Topeks company now in service says that when he is dismissed by the State authorities, he will convert his command into an independent company, and that he has received assurances that other companies will pursue the same course.

There is a general apprehension that the existing political controversies in Kansas have almost passed beyond the point of peaceful settlement, and that while a decision from the Supreme Court may allay the contention temporarily, it is sure to be revived in a more threatening form at no very distant day.

The Populist House passed a concurrent resolution to-night for the final adjournment of the Legislature on next Thursday. They have also reconsidered their action on the World's fair appropriation and passed a bill appropriating $63,000 for a Kansas smibit.

The Republicans have made the resolution for unseating Populist members a special order for to-morrow afternoon. State Treasurer Hiddle to-day refused to pay out money on the Normal School appropriation of affairs he would decline to make any further payments authorized by the Legislature as at present constituted.

It is anticipated to-night by attorneys who authorized by the Legislature as at present constituted.

It is auticipated ro-night by attorneys who are conversant with the facts in the test case submitted to the Supreme Court yesterday that the court will not recognize either the Douglass or the Dunsmore House as the legally constituted House of Representatives, but will maintain that there has been no regular or lawful organization of the lower branch of the Legislature, and that laws passed at this session are invalid.

BREWER PRICE'S UNPAID BILLS.

Judgments Obtained Against Him by the American Yacht and Lotus Clubs.

The American Yacht Club, through its attorneys, secured on Feb. 6 a judgment against Mr. Walter J. Price for $117.31 in the City Court. Mr. Price, who is of the firm o Court. Mr. Price, who is of the firm of Clausen & Price, brewers, did not pay his bouse charges, which were mostly for drinks and cigars, and he also allowed his dues to run behind. He was finally dropped from the club rolls. Mr. Price and no attention to the summons to appear in the City Court and judgment was entered by default. Action in supplementary proceedings will probably follow. Judgment has also been entered against Mr. Price for bills at the Lotus Club.

THE DEPARTMENT OF CHARITIES. mern Reply to the Charges of gement and Extravagance,

On the last day of Mayor Grant's term of office Commissioners of Accounts Wahle and Daly presented to him a report of an investigation of the management of the Department of Charities and Correction, charging that its varied business was carelessly and extrava-gantly conducted. The report was long, and gave what the Commissioners of Accounts asserted was detailed proof of negligence and Commissioners Porter, Simmons, and Sheehy to reply to the charges. The Commissioners presented their reply yesterday in the shape of a printed pamphlet of extremely neat typographical appearance. President Porter was proud of its neatness, because it was printed at the Ward's Island insans asylum. In reply to the first charge, that the respec-

The Commissioners say that the sale of tickets is not carclessly managed, and was commended by the predecessors of the present Commissioners of Accounts. The Commissioners of Accounts. The Commissioners deny that there is any waste of grease from meats that could be sold as refuse.

The Commissioners explicitly deny that the purchase of "extras" is conducted extravagantly and without warrant. They say that the purchase of certain extras is allowed for the various medical staffs of the hospitals, including the officers and nurses. The officers serve without compensation. The purchases are made upon requisitions signed by the Commissioners. The Commissioners say that the charge that the system of meat delivery at the institutions is poor is unfounded, and that the charge that the system of meat delivery at the institutions is poor is unfounded, and that the charge that 1888, 1889, and 1890 in excess of the needs of the institutions is "absolutely false and without foundation." They submit the reports of the General Superintendent of the Insape, and of the Medical Superintendent of the Insape, and of the Medical Superintendent of Ward's Island Asylum to prove its falsity. The Commissioners defend the method of keeping the stock books and ledgers at the reports of the proper seconds for the stock books and ledgers at the stock books in the proper books for the record of supplies are kept at the commissioners of Accounts. The bonds are to be payable in thirty years and will bear five per cent, interest. For the first ten years the interest will be the only charge against the taxpayers, but after that there will be a direct tax of $10,000 a year and the proceeds will be held as a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds. They say in Hoboken that it is enough to do for posterity to build the sewers and pay the interest on them, and that posterity will be so much benefited that the principal will be a mere bagatells when it becomes due.

A New York Electrical Company Buys Big Plant in Newark,

The big plant of the defunct Spiral Weld Tube Company in Newark, of which Dr. Bayles of the Health Board was a prominent stockholder, has been sold to the Crocker-Wheeler Flectrical Company of this city for $45,000, and the company is preparing to move in. The electrical works will give employment to over 1,000 hands, many of whom will go to Newark with the company.

The Spiral Weld Tube Company went into the hands of a receiver eighteen menths ago, and the Chancellor granted an order for the sale of the buildings and property last week.

Mortally Injured Where His Pather Was

Peter McGovern, aged 28, an employee of the Atha & Illingworth Steel Company in Har-rison, was mortally hurt yesterday morning in front of the factory. It was his custom to ride front of the factory. It was his custom to ride to the works every morning on the employees' train of the Pennsylvania Italiroad and jump from the moving train as it passed. His foot slipped yesterday morning, and, instead of reaching the snow bank he jumped at, he fell and struck his head against an iron step of the last car. His skull was fractured and one log was broken.

McGovern's father was killed at the same place a year ago by being struck by a train while crossing the track.

It Costs the City $48,000 to Elect a Senator. The Police Board passed a resolution yes-The Police Board passed a resolution yesterday asking the Board of Aldermen to allow the expenditure of $43,162, without the usual advertising, for a special election in the old Ninth Senate district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Hagan. There are 177 election districts, and the election will require two days for the revision of the registry lists and one day for balloting. Commenting on the cost of the election, Mr. MacLean said the State should have the lives of the Senators insured for the amount necessary. Assemblyman Daniel Martin is talked of as the successor of Senator Hagan. Should Mr. Martin accept the nomination it will be with the understanding that he will be renominated.

NEW BOOKS. Brief Heviews of Important and Into New Publications.

Clark Russell's story. "List, Ye Landsmen!" (Cassell Publishing Company), opens with an account of how William Fielding, mate of the Royal Brunswicker, crossing the sand hills at Deal in a thunder storm, his head buzzing pleasantly with hot-rum punch, comes across a man hanging in chains upon a gibbet, and the man's mother sitting at the gibbet's foot. This is a bit of narrative calculated to yield impressions. The mother accosts the sailor, begging him to take the body down in order that she may bury it. He does not dare to do this, and there is no way to do it, but she persists in her plead-ing, and in a moment the thing is done for her. "I do not believe in latter-day miracles." says Mr. Russell, speaking for William Fielding, cut of whose head all the good of the rum punch is now gone; "I am not a fool; but I do believe in the finger of God. I grasped the woman's soaking sleeve, intending to draw her away from the gibbet; and it was at that moment that the body and the gibbet were struck by lightning. They were clothed with a flash of sunbright flame. In the same instant of the flash there was a burst and shock of thunder, the most deafening and frightful explosion I have ever heard. The motionless atmosphere was thick, sickening, choking with the smell of sulphur. I was hurled backward, but not so as to fall; it was as though I had been struck by the wind of a cannon ball. For some time the blackness stood like a wall against my vision; more lightning there was at that time, one or two fiashes tolerably vivid, but the play on my balls of sight temporarily blinded, glanced dim as sheet lightning when it winks palely past the rim of the sea. Presently I could see. I looked for the woman, scarce knowing the ball of the property of the play of the pl whether I might behold her dead in a heap in the sand. No: she stood at a little distance from me. Like me, she was unable to get her sight. She stood with her white face turned toward Sandwich-that is to say, away from the gibbet; but even as I regained my vision, so tered an extraordinary ory, and in a moment was under the gibbet, kneeling, fondling, clasping, hugging, wildly talking to the chained and lifeless figure, whose metal fastening had been sheared through by the hurning edge of the terrific soythe of fire!" incident makes the third chapter of this story the most remarkable in the book, perhaps. but plenty more happens. It is a tale of the early part of the century. Fielding is run down by a press gang; escapes from them by another providential intervention; thrashes a Dutchman; recovers a lost treasure of half a million Spanish dollars from a South Sea island not down in the charts; outwits a mutinous crew, and reclose of the book, though all the indications seem to declare that he will do neither. Mr. Russell apologizes dialogue; he says he is aware that it was not invented so early as the year 1814. Some other expressions in the narrative are open to the same criticism, but the fact of them is a reassurance. It would never do for this bold and vigorous story teller to take to being mund Clarence Stedman as the initial course of the Percy Turnbull Memorial Lectureship of Poetry at Johns Hopkins University in 1891 is published under the title of "The Nature and Elements of Peetry" (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.). One might fear from parts of Mr. Stedman's introduction to these essays that they were to be over subtle, too much in the air; but they are, in fact, for the ordinary same intelligence, and they are are directed by a consistent logic; they explain lucidly and suggest bappily; they are rich and entertaining in the matter of instances, and they are not without fortunate touches of humor. They are, in short, an agreeable review and criticism of the poets and poetry of distinction, with little or no dogmatism, and with a gratifying amount of common sense. Mr. Stedman does not skirk a definition of poetry. It is, he says, "rhythmical, imaginative language, expressing the invention, taste, thought, passion, and insight of the human soul." This, taken together with his preliminary declaration that the essential spirit of poetry is indefinable, is a good enough definition, perhaps; certainly it is easier to get hold of than the idea in Matthew Arnold's remark. "a criticism of life under the conditions fixed for such a criticism by the laws of poetic truth and poetic beauty." Fine spinning should have its limits, think most of us. and when we are saying things it is a good plan to say them so that the ordinary apprehension may-to employ a phrase beloved of Mr. Howells in his more earnest critical mo ments - catch on. These essays consider severally the oracles of poetry, old and new; the definition of poetry; objective and subjective poetry, or creation and self-expres sion: melanchelia, the genius expressed in Durer's picture. "The Muse of Christendom;" beauty, truth, imagination, and the faculty divine, or passion. insight, genius, and faith. As an instance of the humor of the essayist, we may take his illustration of the difference between poetic and scientific expression.

A series of lectures delivered by Mr. Ed-

Laden with seaweed from the rooks. A bit of impersonation and fancy which. says Mr. Stedman, is translated by the Weather Bureau into something like this:

An area of extreme low pressure is rapidly moving up the Atlantic coast, with wind and rain. Storm centre now off Charleston, S. C. Wind, N. E.; velocity, 54., Barometer, 29.6. Danger eiguals ordered for all th Atlantic ports.

This is an instance of the "saving sense." and an assurance that the essays are not for the mystics who love to roll their solemn heads about in the clouds. We are always sorry for a post when we find him in one of those fron exigencies which are provided for the torment of poets and of their readers. Here is one:

Go. quickly to your mother tell bat you have seen and heard today. No barm to Minna has befol, I swear to keep her safe and well; Ge! we will go our way.

What was the poet to do? He could not say: Go, quickly to your mether tailen, No harm to Minna has befallen.

The poet who was so unfortunate as to get into this fix is Mr. Joseph Samuel Reed, who publishes a book of verses under the title of "Winnowed Grasses" ithe Bowen-Merrill Company. Indianapolis). The volume starts off without difficulty:

Through life's eventful journey all must pass A novel and profound thought, but it came grammatically and apparently with entire case. We wish that all the grasses which Mr. Reed has winnowed might have come with as little of a jerk.

MURDERED; AN OPOSSUM.

Race War Thought to Exist in the Lion House at Central Park, Yesterday morning when Keeper McGuinness entered the lion house he discovered that another opossum had died during the night. Investigation led to the belief that the animal had been murdered by the other occupants of the cage. There was a deep gash in the dead opossum's throat, and it is feared that there is a conspiracy in the opossum colony. Some time ago consignments of opossums were received at the Zoo from Virginia and Port Richmond, and they were locked up together in the same cage. Bince then an opossum has committed suicide, another has died, it is thought, from excessive grief, and a third was found with its throat cut yesterday morning. The queer part of it is that all the dead opossums were members of the Port Richmond family. Another death at the Zoo yesterday was that of a little Rhesus monkey. It is supposed to have died of consumption.

Mrs. Devidé also went to Commissioner Brennan's office and asked him in the name of charity to see that the street-cleaning horses are better cared for.

At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, and of the members of the Irish Emigrant Society, held this day, the President of the bank, Mr. James McMahon announced the death of Trostee Arthur Leary, which occurred Wednesday evening in this city. On motion, the following resolutions were unaniisly adopted as an expression of the feelings o the Source: servived, That the members of this Seard have heard with sincere sorrow of the death of their co-trustee, Mr. Arthur Leary; engaged during his life in many active business enterprises, a financier of great sagacity and knowledge, his integrity was never ques-tioned; he was ever ready to help the unfortunate and the poor, and his kindly heart, thorough plety and unostantatious charity endeared him to all who knew him. Acceptably and honorably he filled the many positions of trust confided to him, and this Roard, in thankfully acknowledging his many services to the bank and to the society, shall ever mis with sorrow his genial presence, tactful ways, and wise counsel.

Resolved, That submitting with humility to the will of God, this bank tenders to his family the assurance of their sincere sympathy in their bereavement. Resolved. That this minute be entered upon the records of the bank and of the society, and a copy, duly engressed, be sent to his family, and that the members of this Board attend together the funeral ceremonies.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE

For March.

In view of the approaching in-auguration of a new President, Mr. HENRY LOOMIS NELSON'S article on

Washington Society

with Mr. C. S. REINHART'S graphic illustrations, is especially timely and interesting.

Not less attractive is Mr. JULIAN RALPH's article,

Our Own Riviera

(Florida), beautifully illustrated by Mr. W. T. SMEDLEY. Those who have read Mr. Ralph's article on New Orleans know what to expect from the writer and the artist, and will not be disappointed.

A melancholy interest attaches to the article on in the same Number, as being the last contribution to the MAGAZINE from the late Mr. THEODORE CHILD. the accomplished writer and critic. In his treatment of the celebrated monastery erected by Philip II. in memory of St. Lawrence, Mr. Child gives the reader an important and suggestive vista of Spanish history. The article is amply and beautifully illustrated.

Henry M. Stanley,

the distinguished traveller, contributes a timely and valuable paper on a subject of the deepest concern to all Christendom, being the story of the African SLAVE TRADE, with a comprehensive review of the operations carried on by the Great Powers for its extinction. The article is accompanied by striking illustrations from drawings by Mr. FREDERIC REMINGTON. A new African traveller from America, is the subject of a brief sketch by Mr. RICHARD HARDING DAVIS-A study of peculiar interest from a social point of view-accompanied by a portrait of Mr. CHANLER.

W. A. Chanler,

Mr. A. CONAN DOYLE, in his new

The Refugees,

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS concludes that portion of the story which is located in France, and which is terminated by the royal signature to the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes. The novel is finely illustrated by Mr. T. DE THULSTRUP.

The third installment also is given of Miss Woolson's new novel, Horace Chase.

The Number contains, in addition to these brilliant serials, a novelette of intensely dramatic interest, entitled the Face on the Wall,

by Mrs. MARGARET DELAND, illustrated by Mr. ALBERT E. STERNER.

W. D. Howells

contributes a series of nine beautiful and most impressive poems, under the title of Monochromes, effectively illustrated by Mr. How-ARD PYLE. The Number also contains a delightful poem by Mr. RICHARD BURTON, entitled MY UPPER SHELVES.

The affairs of the times are again discussed in the Editor's Study, by Mr. CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER. and this department, with the

Editor's Drawer,

which is preceded by Mr. Du MAURIER'S full-page cartoon, and contains, among other attractive features, a short story by Mr. THOMAS NELSON PAGE, completes a Number of striking literary and artistic excellence, fully worthy of its predecessors.
